Prodigies Now Adults Studied

University Seeks Answer To Question About Fate Of Child Geniuses.

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, CAL.—Stanford university has undertaken a survey to determine what happens to young prodigies and gifted children when they become adults.

Do they become just ordinary people or do they carry on the promises they showed in youth? The answer to this will be the chief objective in the university study.

The survey has been made possible by a gift of $20,000 from the Carnegie corporation.

As a start the university has partial records of 1,400 persons who in 1922 were declared to rank within the "genius" class.

The selection at that time was made after a test given to 250,000 California school children, with only one out of 180 chosen. The average intelligence quotient for those selected was 150, with ratings going as high as 200. An I. Q. rating of 180 was regarded as indicating genius.

Field Workers Designated.

The majority of these people still remain in California and the survey of their status will be made by two field assistants working in northern California and two in southern California.

Among the group of "gifted children" were 210 in San Francisco, 276 in East Bay cities around San Francisco, 76 on the San Francisco peninsula, 74 in San Jose, 19 in Chico and 84 in Fresno.

In the past, periodic checkups have been made on most of them, but the present one will be regarded as definite in establishing if they do turn out better than the ordinary child.

From what has been ascertained to date, it is known that they were all hard hit by the depression, yet only one was forced to go on relief, according to available information.

Ninety per cent of the boys and 85 per cent of the girls in the group which had scored ratings one and one-half times brighter than the ordinary youth of their age entered college. Their average was 17 on entering.

High Percentage Graduated.

Nineteen out of every 20 boys in this group and nine out of every 10 girls who entered college remained to graduate.

Following graduation, half of the boys went into professions—65 became lawyers; 45, teachers; 33, physicians; 17, engineers, and several became clergymen.

One-fourth of the boys entered semiprofessional occupations or business.

The remaining one-quarter became radio announcers, ghost writers, swing band players, Walt Disney cartoonists, movie technicians, salesmen, clerks and seamen.

One became a stamp dealer, one a policeman and another a fox farmer.

Not only will the present survey cover the present status, but also what kind of additional education the group received, what wives or husbands received and also the intelligence scores of offspring.

Royal Society Admits Fellow, and It's a Boy

LONDON.—Beards are wagging in the Royal Meteorological society's headquarters in London over the case of Roger Cade.

For it was revealed at the society's annual general meeting that Roger, who is a 14-year-old schoolboy, had been invited by the society's council to become a fellow.

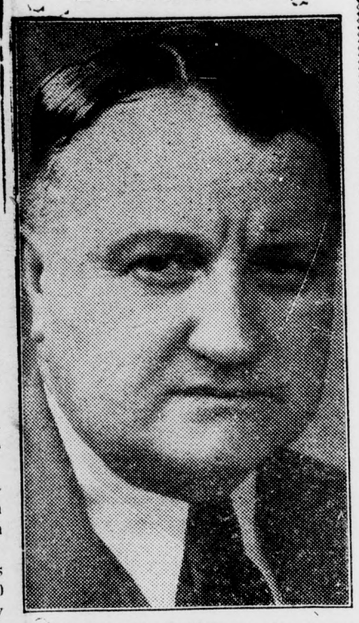

Roger has constantly sent in cloud and storm observations to the society since he was 11, and the council did not know his age when they invited him to become a fellow.

At the annual general meeting, however, some of the graybeards expressed the fear that the prestige of society might be lowered by having a school boy as a fellow.

Invents Seaplane With Reverse Drive

TRIESTE, ITALY.—A new type of seaplane with a reverse drive and a gear changing system something like an automobile has just been tried out here.

The inventor is Signor de Caria, a young engineer.

The seaplane is an ordinary three-engined type, but the working of the gears is operated with an electrical control. They can be made to work at three different speeds and the engine can operate in reverse.

"Gentlemen, I move we make a law"!

With some such slogan as inspiration, the nation's state legislators passed no less than 18,000 bills, covering every topic under the sun, during the sessions just closed, it was revealed this week.

How could legislators, much less the man in the street, find time to study, weigh, and give judicious thought to this complex, multiplex, and multitudionus outpouring of measures? Don't ask us! Suffice it to say, that of the 18,000 bills passed by legislatures, 12,000 of them received stamps of approval from governors and went onto the statute books as laws.

Florida captured first honors in this field by fattening her statutes with 1213 new laws, nor did California do poorly with 1205 bills passed. Governor Olson is now pondering the merits of several hundred of these measures, but not until July 25 will the fate of all of them be known. On that date ends the period in which the governor may sign or veto measures.

"There ought to be a law"! cried legislators this year with renewed emphasis. An there was —not merely one, or 100, but 12,000 of them!

No War This Summer Says Lithuania Savant

In spite of ugly rumors, the nightmare of millions of men under arms and the war of nerves that is gripping Europe at the present time, military conflictbetween Germany and Poland this summer seems unlikely..

This is the opinion of Dr. Kazys Pakstas, associate professor of geography from Vytautas-the-Great University, Lithuania, who is lecturing at the University of Calfornia at Los Angeles this summer. He believes so long as Poland refuses to yield to Nazi pressure that Germany will hesitate to touch off the general European war.

"Hitler was able to take the strong little nation of Czechoslovakia," he said, "only through the help of England. Without England's aid he will have to go to war to acquire more territory. Actual combat over Danzig appears unlikely because of Poland's fierce resistance and Germany's desire to avoid war."

The geographer pointed out that the population of the Polish corridor is 99 per cent Polish and that it is the only commercial outlet to the sea for 35million Poles. Any other seaport beside Danzig would greatly increase the distance by land over which Polish coal, wheat, and industrial products would have to be shipped.

Dr. Pakstas scorned the suggestion that Germany and Poland might make a "deal"—giving the Polish corridor to Germany and giving the little country of Lithuania to Poland. He pointed out that Lithuania has no important seaport along the Baltic coast. Furthermore, Lithuania surrendered Memel to Germany last summer after Hitler had promised there would be no more teirrtorial aggression against the tiny nation.

Whatever the eventual outcome of the squabble over Danzig, Lithuania wants to be neutral, Dr. Pakstas said. "We Lithuanians realize, however, that the Polish corridor is more necessary to the Poles than to the Germans. It is not a matter of sympathy—but one of economics and perhaps justice."

Asiatic Influence Noted In Ancient Utah Relics

SALT LAKE CITY.—Proof of an ancient race of people who came to America from Asia is contained in his collection of artifacts, E. P. Pectol, Wayne county representative to the Utah legislature, believes.

These people sailed from Asia to America 3,000 years ago in homemade boats, Pectol contends. They are well-known to readers of the Latter Day Saints' Book of Mormon, which calls them Nephites.

Pectol points out that the basket work, shields, moccasins, horn spoons and pottery he has found in caves and mounds are similar in construction and decoration to Egyptian work of the corresponding period.

Mickey Mouse Will Welcome Guests To Fair

And it's heigh-ho, heigh-ho to the fair we go as Walt Disney's cartoon family leads the parade in presenting the advertising of California's 85th annual state fair at Sacramento September 1 thru 10.

Soon from the Oregon line to San Diego, Mickie Mouse, Minnie, Pluto, Ferdinand, Donald Duck and the Three Little Pigs will greet the eye, urging attendance at the world's largest agricultural exhibition.

Mickey has Pluto on the leash and heads for the main gate with a happy invitation to follow. Donald Duck rides in on Ferdinand, who heads for the flower show, but ends up doing his stuff pulling a covered wagon.

Once inside, Mickey has a scooter on which to tour the grounds, much to the disgust of the more dignified Minnie.

The Three Little Pigs arrive in a merry mood, skillfully avoid the barbecue pits and finally cast their fortunes with the boys and girls of the 4-H Clubs and the Future Farmers of America.

All this comes about because Walt Disney, as his share in promoting the state's greatest show, granted the fair directors and Secretary-Manager Robert Muckler permission to use his cartoons for advertising without cost.

County Floral Fiesta Exhibits Show Gain

Entries of floral and agricultural exhibits in the San Mateo County Fiesta to be held September 21 to 24 inclusive at Bay Meadows are double the number entered last year, according to Bruce Gibson, fair association president.

These displays will hold the spotlight at the Fiesta, other events being a rodeo full of thrills in which 100 performers will partiicipate, a sportsmen's show and wild life exhibit, an archery contest and another feature number to be announce d dlater.

"Since increasing our board of directors to 20 members we are receiving greater cooperation," Gibson said. "The increased representation of both commercial and amateur groers of flowers or produce will make this year's Fiesta a greater attraction than ever before."

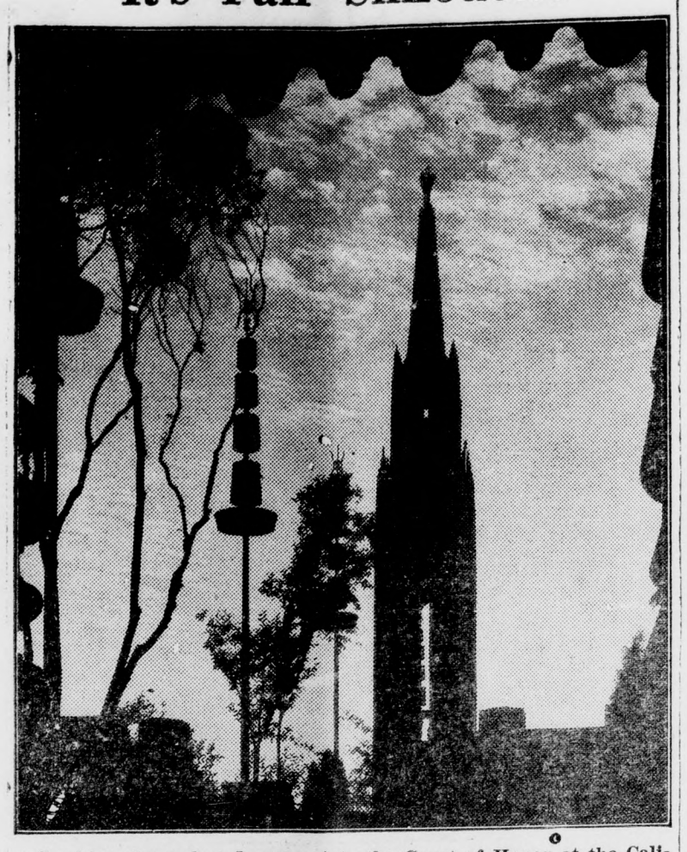

Floral awards will be given for garden displays; flower arrangements; cut flowers and potted plants for amateur gardeners and garden clubs; flowers entered by commercial growers as well as potted plants, shrubs and trees, and professional landscaping displays.

Deer and Kangaroo Pals

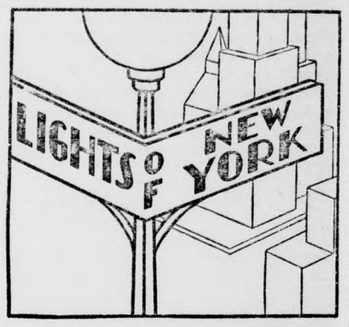

PASADENA, CALIF.—A new one in the line of animal friendships has developed at the local zoo. It is between a young mule deer of this continent and a kangaroo.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert D. Vold of Menlo Park, were guests at the Time and Life Subscribers' Library in the Time and Life Building in Rockefeller Center, New York City, on July 12.

By L. L. STEVENSON

Included in New York's large contingent of "collectors" is Andre Kostelanetz. Since not so long ago he was voted America's No. 1 air traveler, because he commuted between here and Hollywood for some time, it is natural that his taste runs to miniature airplanes. In his collection are a number of replicas of machines that have made historic flights and he is still seeking a model of the crate used by "Wrong Way" Corrigan when he attained fame. Ben Bernie is a member in good standing of the fraternity. His hobby is old minstrel programs. His prize specimen is an opening night handbill describing the wonders of "The Dixie Boys Carnival of Minstrelsy—first appearance on any continent outside the U. S. of A." The year was 1904 and the show played in Liverpool with "Dat Memphis Zoo-Zack Man" as the opening number.

A more youthful member of the fraternity is Ezra Stone who at 20 is one of Broadway's busiest sons, holding down jobs as an actor on the stage and radio, production assistant in still another stage show and faculty member of a leading dramatic school. He collects pipes and in the last two years has picked up three dozen really rare specimens. One he found on the Atlantic shore-line, washed up by the tide and caked with salt. Another is a long-bowled pipe from West Africa. He also collects stage revolvers. His start was with one used in a production of "Treasure Island" in which he appeared at the age of 11. His favorite is what he calls a "narsty looking gat," which was used in the original production of "Dead End."

In the feminine contingent is Lucille Manners, whose hobby is miniature stage settings. She being a singer, these are mostly operatic, the smallest being the Wagnerian "Die Meistersinger," on a stage 10 inches across. At present, she's trying to figure out how to get settings of her favorite musical movies.

Alice Frost has a fine collection of hand-carved furniture, much of it, she proudly admits, the work of her actor-husband, Robert Foulk. Except that she doesn't think it quite practical, she'd like to collect dogs also. "And I will, too," she adds, "as soon as we can find the kind of a farm we both want."

They tell the story in the Havana-Madrid—and it's good enough to be true whether or not it is—of an out-of-towner who came in, with his wife the other evening and took a ringside table. Nano Rodrigo's band was beating out one of his hottest rhumbas. The expert rhumba dancers, who congregate there nightly, were slinging hips and weaving in and out in the most intricate gyrations. In fact, things were pretty hectic and remained that way for fully a half hour. Then the provincial called the headwaiter.

"This is a swell floor show," he confided. "But when will it be over? My wife and I would like to dance."

Genevieve Rowe was walking along Broadway in the Fifties the other afternoon when she observed a motorist, who had turned west on an eastbound street, being hailed by a traffic cop. Evidently wishing merely to steer the driver in the right direction, the officer remarked, "Say, buddy, that's a one-way street."

"But I'm only going one way," flipped the motorist.

"Okay, wise guy," returned the cop, who, of course, had the last word, "then I'll give you a one-way ticket."

Reminiscent of Ma Sycamore in "You Can't Take It With You," who turned from sculpture to playwrighting because some one delivered a typewriter to her home by mistake, is the song writing career of Cloud Reese. Lyn Murray, director of the singers, gave Reese a typewriter for a birthday present. Reese, having nothing else to do, started to peck out lyrics—and proved so efficient that he sold five songs in one week.

Ed. Derry, chairman of the building committee for the St. Joseph's school gymnasium states that he will start work on plans and specifications for the structure at once. He says that contributions are still coming in.

UPSIDE DOWN

The nationwide strike protests of WPA workers against the new law eliminating prevailing wage policies on their protests might have occurred during one of Alice's adventures in Wonderland, for the issues involved are topsy-turvy.

The purpose of a strike is to inflict losses upon the employer in order to win concessions from him. In this instance, the employer is Uncle Sam. When workers remove themselves from his relief rolls to strike, they inflict no loss, but save him money be reducing his wage bill.

If public sentiment favors the WPA strikers, Congress may be induced to re-write its new law which grants the same average monthly wage to workers as formerly, but requires that all must work 130 hours for it. However, to keep this upside down strike clearly in focus, it shold be remembered that it was not a rebellious Congress, but WPA administrators themselves who asked Congress to blue pencil the prevailing wage program.

How that program worked—or, rather, failed to work—was recently pointed out by WPA Administrator Col. F. C. Harrington before a congressional committee. On a typical project, a bricklayer was permitted to work 48½ hours, while a hod-carrier's schedule called for 63½ hours. On the one and same project, a plumber was restricted to 50 hours' labor, but his helper was scheduled for 71½ hours.

According to Col. Harrington's findings, efficient work was impossible under such a system of staggered hours. Under the new provision, hours for WPA laborers will be equal. Congress considered this action fair. If it amends its decision, it will only be because the public has demanded it.

Perak Taps U. S. Cash Registers

Every American Family Pays Tribute to Sultan Of Little State.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Thousands of cash registers all over the United States reverberate faintly but continuously in the treasury of Perak, in British Malaya, halfway around the world, as millions of shoppers make purchases of toothpaste, tin-foiled confections, cigarettes, canned goods, and particularly automobile tires.

"Probably every American family pays 'tribute' to the Sultan of Perak," says the National Geographic society. "Three-fourths of the tin and three-fifths of the rubber used in the United States today comes from British Malaya and a fat share of the totals is produced in the little state of Perak. One of the richest tin deposits known is in the Kinta valley of that state, and it is also one of the three states having the largest rubber acreage.

Great Source of Tin.

"A new sultan is now collecting the American 'tribute'; Abdul Aziz has just been installed on the throne. His domain, which is under the protection of Great Britain, is one of the four Federated Malay states near the southernmost tip of Asia. It is about the size of Massachusetts but has only one-fifth as many inhabitants as the Bay state. The population consists of Malays, Chinese and East Indians, and a sprinkling of other nationalities.

"The Malay states are the greatest source of tin in the world, deposits which attracted the civilizing agencies of Europe and converted the jungle savagery into a well organized society. Back in 1650 the Dutch built a tin 'factory' or trading station on the Perak river and from then onward tried to monopolize the exportation of tin from Perak. In 1818 the sultan signed a free-trade treaty with Great Britain and shortly came under British protection, but the British had little to do with the affairs of the state until after 1870.

"About 50 years ago the British introduced rubber trees into British Malaya, from seed smuggled out of Brazil, and today rubber trees practically cover Perak and other Malay states. In Northern Perak 60,000 irrigated acres are devoted largely to rice; coconuts and oil palms flourish in the south. Some tea and coffee are grown in the states, and a little tobacco.

Under British Protection.

"Perak is mostly in the fertile valley of the Perak river, with mountains in the north and east rising five, six and seven thousand feet, affording relief from the humid heat. The river is navigable by coastal steamers for 40 miles, and also supplies hydro-electric power for the machinery and lighting of Ipoh, the capital, and other towns and villages.

"In 1895 the four states, Perak, Pahang, Selangor and Negri Sembilan, agreed to form a federation and to maintain a contingent of troops. Legislation for the federation is in the hands of a federal council organized in 1909, and presided over by a British high commissioner. He appoints the other 23 members of the council. Council enactments are then assented to by the rulers of the four states. Each state has its own council appointed and presided over by the state ruler."

F. N. Harris of San Jose was a local visitor this week.

BRITISH KING SIGNS "ROYAL BOOK" AT N. Y. FAIR

American Hunters Find Luck Poorer in Canada

INTERNATIONAL FALLS, MINN.—Midwestern sportsmen who hunted big game in Canada during last fall's open seasons had rather poor luck, according to records kept at the American customs office here.

The records, which tabulated the game in pounds and not in numbers, showed that only 29,645 pounds of moose were brought into the United States as compared with 113,086 for 1937.

American hunters returned home with only 55,333 pounds of deer as against 81,645 pounds last year. Importation of bear meat dropped from 3,141 in 1937 to 2,250 pounds last year.

Duck hunters, however, had better shooting in Canada. They brought in 4,089 pounds of duck as compared with 3,141 last fall.

Magic in Colors

NEW YORK.—Unlike the "white fairs" of the past, the New York World's fair 1939, representing "The World of Tomorrow," is a fairyland of color. Exhaustive research has made available to architects and decorators 499 carefully graduated shades.
